CONSIDERING THE WELFARE OF REFUGEES IN RURAL AND REMOTE AUSTRALIA

The health of refugees who settle in rural and remote Australia is the theme of a public seminar to be held at the Australian War Memorial in Canberra on 7 August 2007. Ms Constance Okot and Ms Susan Moi, who are themselves refugees from Africa, will speak in a panel about their own experiences in the re-settlement process. The full text of the NRHA statement is at <http://nrha.ruralhealth.org.au/cms/uploads/media/final%20media%20release%20refugee%20seminar%20260707.pdf> and is reprinted below.

9th NATIONAL RURAL HEALTH CONFERENCE - PROCEEDINGS OUT NOW!

7 - 10 March 2007, Albury, New South Wales

Those unable to attend the 9th National Rural Health Conference in Albury (7-10 March 2007) should take heart. The National Rural Health Alliance (NRHA) has comprehensively updated its website by adding post-Conference information to keep you informed about the state of health in Australia's rural and remote areas.

For instance a Conference Communique highlights the two burning issues that remain even after 17 years of fruitful discussion - the lower rate of Indigenous life expectancy and the insufficient focus within national research programs on rural and remote health and wellbeing.

The NRHA invites you to download the Communique at a keystroke by visiting <http://nrha.ruralhealth.org.au/conferences/?IntCatId=9> and clicking on the Visit the Conference hotlink.

The revised website also contains a downloadable copy of the 18 priority recommendations covering matters such as Indigenous health, arts-in-health, the health workforce and research to help rural communities cope with the health and social effects of the drought.

A full set of 250 Conference recommendations is also available. They provide a snapshot of current thinking on rural and remote health issues identified by delegates in March 2007 under the theme Standing up for Rural Health: Learning from the past - Action for the future.

But wait there's more...

The new-look site includes colour headshots of each of the 20 keynote speakers, including transcripts of what they said and audio accounts that allow you to better gauge how each one was delivered.

The quality lineup includes the keynote address of Federal Health Minister, Tony Abbott, as well as Senator Kate Lundy, the Shadow Minister for Health Promotion. Other guest speakers included Rhonda Galbally, Steve Clark, Philip Davies and John Menadue, among others.

'Our hope'

Australian readers will be aware of recent actions by the Commonwealth Government in remote Aboriginal communities in the Northern Territory. This letter to the editor by Juli Coffin, Senior Lecturer in Aboriginal Health in Western Australia, is a response to the sudden and sweeping government policy intervention. Rural and Remote Health encourages all readers with personal or professional experience of the complex issues facing the people who live in and serve remote Aboriginal communities to submit letters. Our intention is to provide a forum to share viewpoints from those who are affected by these latest and previous interventions.
<http://www.rrh.org.au/articles/showarticlenew.asp?ArticleID=825>

'Our Hope Also'

Two more letters have just been posted on the recent Australian government response to abuse in Aboriginal communities. Written by health care providers and a researcher, respectively, with considerable experience in working respectfully and effectively with Aboriginal people, both letters call for a well-resourced but thoughtful response using proven solutions and, to quote from one letter 'the collective wisdom within the community.' Rural and Remote Health urges others to share their views and experience on this issue.

The Royal Australian College of General Practitioners (RACGP) has today welcomed the initiative shown by general practitioners and other health workers who have put up their hand to make a difference in Indigenous health.

"This groundswell of Australians who are keen to act is an important first step. REGIONAL POPULATION GROWTH, AUSTRALIA, 1996 to 2006 (ABS Cat 3218.0)

Australia's estimated resident population (ERP) at June 2006 was 20.7 million people. This represents an increase of 1.3 million people (or 6.6%) since June 2001, with an average annual growth rate of 1.3%.

At 30 June 2006, capital city Statistical Divisions (SDs) were home to over 13.2 million people, making up almost two-thirds (64%) of Australia's population, the same proportion as in June 2001 and June 1996.

The combined population of the state balances (those areas outside capital city SDs) increased by 472,700 people during the five years to June 2006 to reach 7.53 million, making up 36% of Australia's population at June 2006.

Inland regional centres continued to gain population in the five years to June 2006.

As the population of a locality ages and households move through the life cycle, well-established areas can decline in population. For example, Campbelltown (C), in the Sydney SD, decreased by 3,000 people between June 2001 and June 2006. Several other LGAs with large population declines in the five years to June 2006 were located within the Sydney SD, including Fairfield (C), Ku-ring-gai (A), and Canterbury (C). Large population declines were also recorded outside capital city SDs between June 2001 and June 2006, especially in areas that have been affected by drought, for example the New South Wales LGAs of Moree Plains (A) and Walgett (A) declined by 1,700 and 1,100 people respectively.

From: Joy Burch
Subject: 2007 Mount Isa Remote Health Conference 24-26 August 2007

Every two years Mount Isa hosts a conference aimed at bringing together people with an interest in all aspects of health in remote Australia. Previous events in 2003 and 2005 were immensely successful with attendees finding the presentations 'focussed and relevant' and many going on to indicate their willingness to attend again.

The purpose of this year's event is to provide a forum for information exchange and debate about issues relevant to remote health with a particular focus on the following themes:

- * Clinical practice in remote areas;
- * Population Health including Indigenous health;
- * Workforce supply, education and training;
- * Research outcomes such as innovation in health service delivery.

This conference is convened by the Mount Isa Centre for Rural and Remote Health in collaboration with a range of stakeholders including, Queensland Health, the Royal Flying Doctors Service, James Cook University, Oxfam, North and West Queensland Primary Health Care and the Mount Isa City Council. Through involvement of such a wide range of remote health organisations the multidisciplinary nature of this conference is assured.

Once again the Mount Isa Remote Health Conference promises to be a fantastic event and, through its small size and limited registrations, represents a great opportunity to establish networks with other remote health professionals.

From: Michael Blair
Subject: Australian College of Mental Health Nurses 33rd Annual International Conference

The Australian College of Mental Health Nurses is to hold its 33rd Annual Conference in Cairns in 2007.

The theme for the conference, "Mental Health Nurses: Making Waves", not only illustrates the tropical location of the 2007 conference, it is also intended to reflect the idea that historically derived factors influencing development in Mental Health Nursing, reach out and influence others with related concerns.

Waves convey ideas of movement and change. History evolves as events change. Its influence on the future changes with developments that are based on the lessons learnt and experienced. As a wave rolls through, its predecessor is completely changed and yet waves are comprised of those that have come before. Our theme challenges presenters to address related topics. We know that mental health issues will remain important to communities and individuals in the years and decades to come. Mental health nursing is challenged to make waves and to be a key player in this expanding sphere.

The ACMHN Inc., through its national Conferences, local seminars, educational functions, scholarships and awards, has enjoyed a long and productive relationship with key sponsors. We hope that existing sponsors will take this opportunity to continue a mutually rewarding relationship, and that new groups will be inspired to join us.

The Web site URL for persons to express an interest in attending or sponsoring the conference is <http://www.astmanagement.com.au/anzcmhc7/>

All those persons that express an interest in attending via the web site will go into the draw for a free registration to the conference.

The forum will be based in the beautiful rural town of Udaipur, Rajasthan, which is also the home of IRN Board Member Lakshmi Murthy.

The Forum will involve five days, with at least one day (or equivalent) in local field visits to see the relevant work of NGOs etc. There are likely to be optional additional visits after the Forum either to the famous Institute of Rural Management in Anand, Gujarat and/or to the equally famous Birla Institute of Technology in Pilani, Rajasthan.

Poverty and disadvantage is a common feature of rural areas and people across the world. This is explicitly recognised in the UN Millennium Development Goals. By providing a global forum for academics, practitioners, NGOs and policy makers concerned with sustainable rural development, education and health, the IRN aims to stimulate exchange of knowledge, experience and ideas, and create regional and global support networks. In this way it helps to develop a storehouse of knowledge and expertise on rural concerns, and to raise the profile and policy impacts of rural people, their NGOs and other organisations aiming for local empowerment, engagement, and supporting activities including policies.

NRHA MEDIA RELEASE

Considering the welfare of refugees in rural and remote Australia
26 July 2007

The health of refugees who settle in rural and remote Australia is the theme of a public seminar to be held at the Australian War Memorial in Canberra on 7 August 2007. Ms Constance Okot and Ms Susan Moi, who are themselves refugees from Africa, will speak in a panel about their own experiences in the re-settlement process.

Organised by the National Rural Health Alliance (NRHA), the seminar will feature keynote addresses and case studies, including one on the need to provide health and counselling services to refugees and another on the necessity for community support.

In an address that bears comparison to extending health checks for Aboriginal children in the Northern Territory, Dr Mitchell Smith of the Royal Australasian College of Physicians Working Party on Refugee Health, will speak on the health of refugee children re-settled in Australia.

Titled "Listening with compassion: responding with respect", the half day seminar will also be addressed by Daniel Boyer of the Department of Immigration and Citizenship. He will discuss the settlement of refugees in regional areas and provide information on their numbers, location and health status.

Dr Geraldine Duncan, a general practitioner from Wagga Wagga and trauma counsellor Dr Penny Vine from Albury, both in country NSW, will present case studies on providing health and counselling services to refugees in rural areas.

NRHA Chairperson, Professor John Wakerman, hopes the seminar will inform the public on how Australia is coping with refugee settlement outside of major cities like Sydney, Melbourne, Adelaide, Brisbane and Perth.

Registration at the Telstra Theatre, within the Australian War Memorial complex, will open at 1.15pm on Tuesday, 7 August. Those who wish to register early can do so online at register@ruralhealth.org.au
